For Immediate Release

Scotiabank Celebrates International Women’s Day

Nassau, The Bahamas, April 17, 2014 – Scotiabankers collectively donated funds to the Providing Access to Continued Education (PACE) programme as part of local International Women’s Day celebrations recently. Scotiabank (Bahamas) Ltd.’s Advancement of Women (AoW) Committee spearheaded the charitable effort as one of a few women-centered initiatives involving staff during the month.

Scotiabank’s local AoW Committee is comprised of the Bank’s leading women collectively working to address the challenges women face and celebrate the successes of women in the workplace. AoW functions as a sub-committee of Scotiabank’s Advancement of You (AoY) group.

As a global organization where women make up more than 70% of its employee base, Scotiabank is keenly interested in women’s issues. The bank supports women here in The Bahamas and around the globe in reaching their full potential and building a bright future. Scotiabank strives to be a recognized leader in the advancement of women and a destination workplace for women seeking careers in the financial industry.

The PACE programme aims to ensure that the young ladies enrolled become responsible mothers, positively contributing to society. PACE Principal, Jacqueline Knowles, thanked Scotiabank for its donation which, she said, would assist with the everyday needs of the students.
Pictured: Members of Scotiabank’s Advancement of Women’s Committee with PACE Principal, Jacqueline Knowles. (l to r) Linda Baker, Marcia Laramore, PACE’s Principal Knowles, Alanna McCartney, Sharon Dean, and Glenette Reckley.

###

For further information, please contact:
Maxine Seymour
Manager Public & Corporate Affairs, Sponsorships & Philanthropy
Marketing and Public Relations
Tel: (242) 356-1446
Fax: (242) 356-1601
Email: maxine.seymour@scotiabank.com